WHO WE ARE

Young Water Professionals Denmark (YWPDK) is a network for everyone below 35 years old working or studying within the Danish water sector. YWPDK is an independent network under the auspices of the International Water Association (IWA). YWPDK members are affiliated with public and state organizations, interest organizations, utilities, universities and consulting firms. We have diverse academic and cultural backgrounds with broad levels of experience in the Danish water sector.

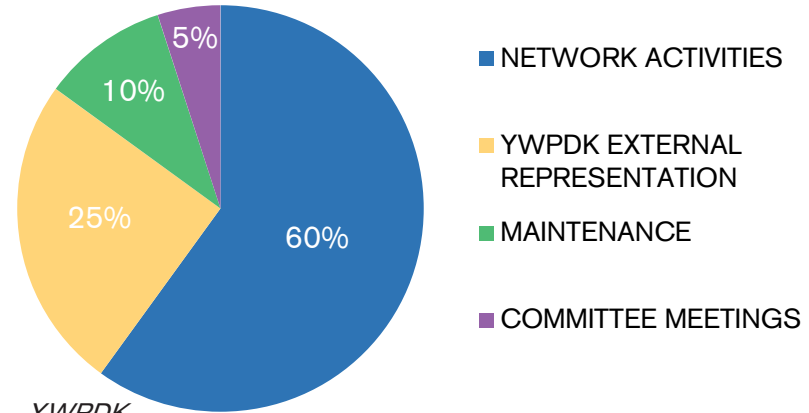

Organisations represented in YWPDK

YWPDK AIMS TO

- Contribute to the development of the water industry by improving career opportunities for young water professionals and become a basis for recruitment
- Connect actors within and across the water sector to enhance knowledge exchange and innovation
- Organize social and professional events in order to strengthen the engagement of young water professionals and to stimulate the interest of new ones
- Become a discussion platform for young professionals from different technical and academic backgrounds
- Influence universities and other educational establishments to develop their focus in water
- Help influence and develop tomorrow's water agendas at all levels

YWPDK ECONOMIC PRIORITIES

Membership of YWPDK is free of charge, and therefore the network does not collect any income based on their members. Consequently, our economy relies entirely on sponsorships and funds from external institutions. Our annual budget is tailored to our current funding and mainly consists of:

YWPDK Economic Priorities

By sponsoring YWPDK, the contributors mark their engagement in developing the water sector of tomorrow by securing the links between the young professionals and the organisations running the water sector today.

All contributors or potential contributors are welcome to contact us for a tailored presentation of the network, vision, mission, actions and members.
